Love & Fame John Berryman 1970 Fifty-nine lyrical works in which the Pulitzer Prize-winning poet describes the creative process, politics, and the struggle of maintaining life.

about:blank Tracy Fuad 2021-10-19 Gold Winner, 2022 Nautilus Book Award In about:blank, Tracy Fuad builds a poetics of contemporary dissociation. Funny, plaintive, and cutting, this formally inventive debut probes alienation in place and in language through the author's consideration of her own relationship to Iraqi Kurdistan. about:blank—the title of which is the universal URL for a blank web page—complicates questions of longing and belonging. Interrogating the language of internet chatrooms, Yelp reviews, and the Kurdish dictionary, the poems here leap surprisingly between subjects to find new meaning. Written before and during the years the author spent living in Iraqi Kurdistan, the collection documents the alienation of being inside, outside, and between language(s) and the always-already terror of grammar. At once haunted and humorous, about:blank inhabits and exhibits the disorientation and fragmentation that is endemic to the internet era, and mourns the loss of a more embodied existence.

DICTIONARY OF DADS Justin Coe 2017-10-01 A brilliant and funny debut collection of poems about more than fifty different dads, with witty illustrations Dictionary of Chaos James Babbs 2002-09-26 We search for meaning in our everyday lives. Wanting order to emerge, bringing us some sense of peace. But meaning is subjective and, therefore, elusive and, even, when presented with words and their definitions meaning can change. Words can lead us down dark alleys and carry us into the light. Words driven by desperation. Words desperate, attempting to discover meaning in a meaningless world. Words desperate for some illusion of order if, only, for a short time before they are scattered to the winds of chaos, blown aimlessly along, again.

The Freedom of the Poet John Berryman 1976 The late American poet's critical explorations into the works and tempers of his fellows, from Shakespeare to Whitman, from Marlowe to Yeats, Thomas, and Lowell, together with five stories Homage to Mistress Bradstreet John Berryman 2014-10-21 This volume represents the first appearance in paperback of one of America's most outstanding poets, John Berryman. It contains, besides the long title poem, Homage to Mistress Bradstreet, the major portion of Short Poems; a selection from The Dispossessed, which drew on two earlier collections; some poems from His Thought Made Pockets & The Plane Buckt; and one poem from Sonnets. "It seems to me the most distinguished long poem by an American since The Waste Land." - Edmund Wilson

A Dictionary of the Characters and Scenes in the Stories and Poems of Rudyard Kipling 1886-1911 William Arthur Young 1969

A Yeats Dictionary Lester I. Conner 1999-01-01 This is the first dictionary to identify, chart, and explain in context the many proper names and place names that so famously enrich the poetry of William Butler Yeats and, just as famously, anchor that poetry to Ireland. In compiling this work, Lester I. Conner has relied upon Yeats's own prose, the principal Yeats criticism, and the writings of Yeats's friends and critics. The result is a work that warmly ushers us into the poems, where we find we are not strangers after all.

The Magic of Mums Justin Coe 2020-02 Mothers in all their splendid variety are celebrated in Justin Coe's sparkling new collection of poems. Following up on the success of his Dictionary of Dads (2017), Justin Coe's new collection of poems focuses on Mums, in all their variety. In fact around 50 different Mums feature in verses that are sometimes tender, often comic, and always witty and observant of real life.

Love and Fame John Berryman 2014-10-21 One of the most astonishing things about this astonishing book is that it follows so closely in time the enormous achievement of the author's Dream Songs, the first part of which 77 Dream Songs, won the Pulitzer Prize for Poetry in 1965 and the second part, His Toy, His Dream, His Rest, the National Book Award for Poetry in 1969. Love & Fame is written in a style new for Berryman, new for anybody. The poet talks of his beginnings as an artist' of his loves; of the strange experience of fame ("Dawdling into glory"); of violent politics' of a sanatorium in the Midwest ("Hospital racket, nurses' iron smiles")' of the whole peculiar business of being and staying alive. The poems are cast in language that is fresh, frank blunt, exuberantly gay, shocking, funny, deeply tragic, and never less than memorable: Thought much I then on perforated daddy, daddy boxed in & let down with strong straps when I my friends' homes visited, with fathers universal & intact. Love & Fame culminates in a grave series of "Eleven Addresses to the Lord." "...Love & Fame (1970), the last book that Berryman saw to publication ...[was] the most nakedly confessional of all his books..." - The Atlantic Femme's Dictionary Carol Guess 2004 This hip poetry collection blends spoken word and language poetry with social commentary that speaks to younger women in a modern voice that still encompass the narrative and lyric traditions.

The Latin Poems Samuel Johnson 2005 This work is based on a simple premise-that in the case of a major figure like Johnson the reader should have access to all his work. Johnson himself would not have wished that in an age when very few can read the language his Latin poetry should be consigned to a separate category, closed to most educated readers.

All The Names Given Raymond Antrobus 2021-09-02 From the Sunday Times Young Writer of the Year 2019 Shortlisted for the T. S. Eliot Prize 2021 '[Raymond Antrobus] has built another beautiful paper house which you can spend a very long and deeply satisfying time inside.' Mark Haddon 'Moving deftly between tenderness and violence, hope and grief, praise and lament, this is a deeply evocative collection that will linger in the reader's mind.' Guardian Raymond Antrobus's astonishing debut collection, The Perseverance, won both Rathbone Folio Prize and the Ted Hughes Award, amongst many other accolades; the poet's much anticipated second collection, All The Names Given, continues his essential investigation into language, miscommunication, place, and memory. Throughout, All The Names Given is punctuated with [Caption Poems] partially inspired by Deaf sound artist Christine Sun Kim, which attempt to fill in the silences and transitions between the poems, as well as moments inside and outside of them. Direct, open, formally sophisticated, All The Names Given breaks new ground both in form and content: the result is a timely, humane and tender book from one of the most important young poets of his generation.

Anorexia Lisa Bernstein 1985 A collection of sixteen poems describing a young girl's struggle with the eating disorder, anorexia nervosa.

A Milton Dictionary Edward Le Comte 1961 Besides being a dictionary of "hard words" in Milton - his allusions, geographic and mythological, classical and Biblical, literary and historical - his vocabulary, archaic, obsolete or special - the book also contains a descriptive entry for each of Milton's works, down to the least Latin and Greek epigram.

Henry's Fate and Other Poems John Berryman 2014-10-21 The poems in this posthumous collection were written by John Berryman between 1967 and 1972, the year of his death. The first group consists of forty-five unpublished or uncollected Dream Songs, included the title poem, "Henry's Fate." The second part includes eleven short poems; the third is devoted to unfinished longer poems, one of which is the extraordinary draft version of "Washington in Love," more ambitious in scope and intention than the version Berryman published in Delusions, Etc. This section also includes the "Proemio" to a poem addressed to his children, which Berryman was planning as "my third epic," after Homage to Mistress Bradstreet and The Dream Songs. The fourth and final section consists of ten poems of the later period, including "The Alcoholic in the 3rd Week of the 3rd Treatment," and "I didn't," a poem written within forty-eight hours of his death. Henry's Fate and Other Poems has been compiled by John Haffenden, poet and critic, who is at work on the authorized biography of Berryman. In his introduction he reveals that a number of poems turned up in unlikely places: "Old Codger Henry" was found, for example, on a scrap of envelope tucked away in an edition of Coleridge." He cites a satirical epitaph Berryman wrote on himself as early as 1955: "He was a poet. To earn a living--instead of scrounging as he should have done--he lectured on subjects he knew nothing about to students incapable of learning anything." He feels that Berryman "embodied in his life the truth of his own phrase, 'The happier you get the worse you feel.'"

Gathering the Golden Poetry Roy E Peterson 2020-04-17 Gathering the Golden Poetry is like putting my poem harvest into a storage silo back on my youthful days spent on a farm in Pleasant Valley Township, Gregory County, South Dakota. Those nostalgic golden days of yesteryear shaped my cultural values, cultivated a sense of perspective and proportion, taught me to conserve everything from the earth to the limited food and goods we had as a struggling farm family, and enriched my soul with prayers before each meal. I learned to drive the old Case tractor at the age of six so my dad could use a pitchfork to fill the wagon behind me. My life was filled with family love, exciting things to see and do, creatively making my own toys and playtime scenarios as an only child, and reading the dictionary in the winter months in the evening by the flickering kerosene lamp. Since we did not have electricity on our farm until 1954, I remember the thrill of listening to radio programs and imagining the world beyond the farm. I am a member of the Society of Classical Poets, an organization dedicated to the renaissance of poetry with rhyme and meter. This volume brings my self-published total of poems to 2,400 with the broadest array of subjects from innate humor to comical tales, from love and romance to sensitivity to feelings, from patriotic to religious, from social and political critique to pointed remonstrances and measures for reform of a country and society going astray. Since I have the ability to write at all levels and classes of society, you will find poems appropriate for those considerations, a treasure trove of varied opinions and advice, and subtle messages that include double and triple entendrés. Word use constitutes the value in this gathering of my golden harvest.
